Discover Botswana

Considered the most exciting safari destination in Africa, Botswana is celebrated for its unparalleled diversity of landscapes and wildlife

Defined by the Kalahari Desert and the Okavango Delta, the country's dynamic ecosystem makes it an irresistible magnet to wildlife. This is where you'll find, for example, the world's largest population of elephants.

Across Botswana, from the lush wetlands of the extraordinary Okavango Delta – 10,000 square miles of floodplains, palm groves and papyrus swamps visible from space – to the swathes of shrubby savannah and swaying grasslands dotted with baobab trees, a thrilling array of animals finds sanctuary. Not just the “big five” of lion, elephant, buffalo, leopard and rhino, but hyena, warthog, the endangered Cape wild dog, black-backed jackals, bat-eared foxes, aardvarks, pangolins and a glorious wealth of amphibians, reptiles and birds.

Soak up this theatre of matchless drama from Belmond's three captivatingly different safari lodges, set in the Okavango Delta, Chobe National Park and Moremi Game Reserve. Connected to each other by light aircraft, together our spectacularly located retreats provide the ultimate Botswana safari experience.

*“The eyes never forget
what the heart has seen.”
- African proverb*

A Warm Welcome

Each lodge enjoys its own ecosystem, so the experience from one to the next is dramatically different. Together, they create an all-encompassing Botswana safari

Belmond Eagle Island Lodge, stunningly designed to conjure up an explorer's base, is located on an island in the heart of the Okavango Delta. Africa's ultimate water-focused safari, it offers the chance to drift through the watery landscape on a mokoro canoe, spotting bright frogs, kingfishers and crocodiles.

Elephant are, not surprisingly, the main attraction at Belmond Savute Elephant Lodge, recently relaunched with an exemplary new eco-friendly design, luxurious spa and viewing hide. The majestic inhabitants, which also embrace lion, leopard and wild dog, are drawn to the mysterious Savute Channel, which flows and dries up seemingly at whim.

Animal magic meets old-world indulgence at Belmond Khwai River Lodge, where the big game of the Moremi Reserve are in your sights. Espy giraffe, buffalo and cheetahs from our beautiful raised, thatched rooms overlooking the floodplains.

Meet Our Guides

A highlight of every stay is the warm presence and expert guidance of our local safari guides

Locally born and bred, our guides possess unrivalled knowledge of the area. As familiar with the animals' habits as their own, they can enlighten you about the hunting predilections of lions or the mating battles of the dung beetle.

In their capable hands you may enjoy bushwalks at dawn, stunning drives through the savannah and safaris by horseback or mokoro canoe. They'll point out the intricacies of ancient cave paintings, introduce you into their village football match or sit round the fireside exchanging stories. They can also tell you about African mythology, delta geology or the stars in the night sky.

Time spent in their company is time enriching your experience of Botswana. You may arrive as guests, but you'll surely leave as friends.

Introducing Belmond Eagle Island Lodge

Set on remote Xaxaba Island, on the passage routes of many species, our lodge has long been the ideal base from which to explore the Okavango Delta

Recently re-imagined, the lodge's design captures the spirit of the delta, blending cleverly into the landscape while offering stylish and contemporary comforts. The wonders of nature take centre stage. A natural, earthy palette emphasises the delta's dazzling hues; views of the mesmerising landscape grace every room. Just like the water channels that weave their way through the grasslands, the design flows through the lodge. Delightful touches take inspiration from the wildlife – a swarm of metal butterflies hovers near the ceiling, wall textures echo elephant skin.

Your days promise to be filled with awe-inspiring adventures tailored to the season. When the delta's flooded, usually between May and October, the water wonderland is best explored by boat. In the drier months, activities include nature walks, village visits and an exhilarating horseback and helicopter safari.

As night falls, enjoy a sundowner in the bar, listening out for the fish eagle's distinct whistle. Or gather round the campfire for barbecued treats and the chance to swap stories with your fellow travellers.

Accommodation

Flooded with light by day, indulgently cosy at night, each of our 12 tented rooms is carefully positioned to afford total privacy and sweeping vistas

Unwind in soothing grey interiors, punctuated by flashes of deep gold. Stretch out on the oversized bed, framed by a stunning copper headboard that references Botswana's copper mining tradition. Draped over the bed is a custom-made tulle mosquito net that plays with the lighting. Your bedside cabinets are integrated into the headboard, the traditional folding camp table is re-invented as a leather upholstered bench at the end of the bed and a separate daybed within a window nook doubles as a child's bed. Discover the buckled leather minibar, inspired by an explorer's toolbox, and enjoy a desk, spacious walk-in closet and discreet air-conditioning.

In your luxurious bathroom you'll find an indoor and outdoor shower and a freestanding black bathtub. The floor is finished in a rippling water effect, copper taps suggest valves that open and close waterways and, at a glance, the bracketed bathroom lights might just be giant insects.

Then the final ta-da moment: step out onto your private deck and into your own plunge pool – a prime spot for soaking up the mesmerising scenery.

CHAPTER FOUR

Introducing Belmond Savute Elephant Lodge

What makes our corner of Chobe National Park so special – apart from the large herds of elephant – is one of Northern Botswana's greatest mysteries

The enigmatic Savute Channel ebbs and flows seemingly at whim. When it sprang to life in 2011, after 30 years dormant, it turned the parched environment into a wetland paradise, attracting a huge array of wildlife.

This diversity – and the animal antics that go with it – have made Savute a hotspot for film and documentary makers. National Geographic's mini-series Savage Kingdom captured the way animals have adapted to the idiosyncratic environment, with leopards catching catfish in the muddy waters and wild dogs chasing impala into the river. Yet even when the waters recede, a network of waterholes means there are fascinating interactions to witness, as creatures including hyena, warthog and maribou storks all gather to slake their thirst.

Enjoy a ringside seat of the action from our tented oasis, newly redesigned to conjure up Savute's pioneering heritage – David Livingstone was among the explorers documenting wildlife here in the 19th century. Take breakfast overlooking the elephants at the watering hole or watch them from our new viewing hide. Embark on early-morning game drives or forays into the bush to see ancient San Bushmen paintings. Join us after dark for an uplifting boma. Your safari adventure begins here.

Accommodation

Belmond Savute Elephant Lodge boasts 12 luxurious tented rooms, each raised on a wooden platform to allow breathtaking views of animals in their natural habitat

As with the rest of the Lodge, handcrafted and bespoke pieces give the space a local, artisanal feel. Stretch out on your four-poster bed or the bright blue sofa facing out to the view. Your bedposts are inspired by the walking sticks of the San people or the elaborate, carved wooden posts of the Tuaregs who inhabit the Sahara Desert. Elegant draped mosquito nets keep unwanted visitors away. Above your coffee table hangs a blue and ivory-toned rope chandelier, creating dancing shadows at night. In the bathroom is a timber and marble vanity, housing pottery basins, and a generous outdoor shower connecting you to nature.

The expansive terrace serves as your glorious outdoor living space with a huge daybed taking centre stage. Inspired by African carved headrests, with a canopy that transforms it into a four-poster, it's a blissful spot for wildlife viewing, cocktail in hand.

Rooms are discreetly air-conditioned and include fully-stocked minibars and dressing rooms.

Or choose a drink from the cocktail fridge, curl up in a wicker chair and watch the wild inhabitants stroll by. When it's time to venture further, make a beeline for our new viewing hide overlooking the watering hole. Observe elephants, cheetahs, hyenas and antelope as they gather at daybreak and dusk for refreshment.

Discover our stylish pool, lounge and spa, and our inviting firepit where, after dark, you can join fellow guests for a convivial evening of tasty specialities and traditional entertainment.

Just like the great explorers before you, you'll take home memories and photographs of the magnificent sights you've seen - though perhaps you'll leave a little piece of your heart at Belmond Savute Elephant Lodge.

Introducing Belmond Khwai River Lodge

Animal magic meets old-world indulgence at one of the first lodges in Botswana to recognise the need for conservation

Launched in 1971, the original lodge eschewed hunting in favour of photographic safaris. It was set up by Harry Selby, a safari specialist who inspired one of Ernest Hemingway's fictional heroes. Selby chose a beautiful spot under giant sycamore figs and leadwood trees on the northern bank of the Khwai River. He also built his "bridge over the River Khwai", which today serves as the North Gate entrance to Moremi Game Reserve.

Moremi is exceptional for year-round game viewing. No fences are allowed in the reserve, so animals roam freely according to seasonal migration patterns. Come with us on a wealth of adventures ranging from early-morning game drives to moonlight safaris and stargazing excursions. Just six passengers travel in each vehicle, so everyone enjoys great views of the action.

Back at the lodge, round off a perfect day with a dip in the pool or a spa treatment, then join us for a buffet of delectable African specialities in Mothupi's Boma as a choir sings tribal songs.

Accommodation

Suite

For a more secluded and romantic experience, check into the private suite which is tucked away from the main rooms. Take a dip in the heated splash pool as antelope dash mere metres away. Or enjoy an alfresco shower at dawn to witness the savannah coming to life.

We offer a segregated kitchen area where we carefully separate the kosher food, cutlery, kitchen utensils and wash-up areas. We only buy Beth Din approved products. In the dining area there will be a reserved table for our kosher guests, who have the opportunity to liaise daily with our Executive Chef to discuss menus and dishes.

Relax & Refresh

Sustainable Safaris

In all of our lodges we give the utmost consideration to protecting Botswana's precious environment for generations to come

Low-energy consumption, responsible waste management and recycling or reusing of materials are all part of our environmental ethos. In our two newly designed lodges, Belmond Eagle Island Lodge and Belmond Savute Elephant Lodge, we've significantly reduced our footprint and installed state-of-the-art energy-efficient systems. Initiatives have included replacing all concrete structures with reclaimed timber and sustainable bamboo and introducing local thatch. We've installed LED-based lighting, thermodynamic geysers and heat pumps to supply hot water, and filtration and remineralisation plants to provide drinking water. Guests are given reusable water bottles to refill from the coolers. Kitchen waste is turned into compost, which is then used by community farming projects outside of the parks. At Belmond Savute Elephant Lodge, a Tesla Photo Voltaic Solar system, the first of its kind in Botswana, integrates with generators to ensure a single, uninterrupted power supply.

We also strive to employ local craftspeople, artists and labourers wherever possible. Everything in your room, from rods and rails to tables and sofas, mattresses, reading lights and mosquito nets is sourced and commissioned from Botswana.
